Dear Mrs. Anapper, you've helped me alot this year. When I came here I was very sky Cotillam a little) you sunderstood me and didn't push me past what I was able to do at the time, At the beginning I don't think I could have even did a duet and Ithink I can when I sorning besore my mouth was shut now Ican sing with it open. You have helped me become not as shy. This year has had alot of problems but they all worked out alright. We will all miss you this next year. But God will be with you in whatever 404 do. Have a wonderful summer and a great time next year. You have been a friend as well of a teacher 4hos year. Thanks for being both. God bless you and keep you safe. Good luck in future greats.

Echoes of first School Year Promised Confident Start

1. CLINT SMITH, Rod Tos, Brian O'Connor, and Steve Neison reach for ice. 2. MRS. AGADONI keeps a lead over Mr. Agadoni. 3. ON THE move, Mr. Gizzi has already passed Dawn Heath and SarahLapp, getting his speed up to pass Kent Lawson and Joe Little.

Their good start of '79-80 continued in September, 1980. They had grown! The 91 students of June, '80 had increased to 155. Seniors made them a full-fledged high school. Although the size was different, Christ was still the center. They continually depended on Him for all their needs.

Echoes of that first year continued. The Boosters Club had organized a Jog-a-thon. Dr. J. Barry Koops had exclaimed, "It's the most fantastic Jog-a-thon ever! We did fabulously well." With $II,000 they had bought choir music, and science and athletic equipment.

At an awards banquet they had acknowledged teams such as the softball team. There was excellence in academics, in speech, music, and yearbook activities. Through the confusion, they were breaking new trails. They were united, establishing tradition.

4. "DADDY'S GIRLS," the softball team, give Mr. Gizzi a trophy in gratitude for his great coaching, 5. ADELE MONK and Steve Nelson were best-dressed couple for Clash Day. 6. CHERYL TOS, Brian O'Connor, Janice Anderson, Jon Obera, and Rhonda Graham join forces for a picture.

New Encounters Presented New Challenges

Their faces turned to new ventures. Portable classrooms, which helped accommodate the increased number of students, also presented some problems.

"I can't get into the classrooms without an entrance because the platform shakes. I have to jiggle the key in the lock to get in," claimed Miss Janine Crowe, French teacher.

1. SWINGING IN the lareground of our new portables are Rhonda Graham and Brian Smith. 2. DERRICK VANDER MEULEN prepares chemicals as Mr. Agadoni's TA. 3. DAVE MITCHELL intently studies in New Testament Letters class.

Five new teachers joined the teaching staff. The curriculum included new courses, such as oceanography, physics, and government. However, whether students faced new classrooms, new teachers, or new classes, studying continued.

Just like the year before, they walked down to chapel. The only difference was that this year the pews were jammed! Chapel provided a time to remind them of the unity they shared in Christ. Students found chapel a welcome break in the weekly schedule.

Second Year Established Firsts

New activities and exciting field trips made them further aware of their community. Especially exciting was a music field trip to the newly opened Davies Symphony Hall in San Francisco. All seniors and few juniors won use of larger lockers. P.E. classes sported uniforms. Behind it all was the time to meditate, to share quiet moments, and to look forward to a first graduation.

Many Found Fulfillment ...

The class of '81 began as juniors with 16 students. They had come from schools as far away as McKinleyville and as near as Acalanes, Berean, and Northgate. What were they looking for? Jan Anderson was looking for "a totally different atmosphere, where teachers are more than teachers; they're friends." Nancy Palmer was looking for an atmosphere "where the teachers and school code don't press upon the students one particular set of religious beliefs. This frees us to worship God in the way we've been taught. We are given Christ's freedom and can experience true liberty "

What did they find? Cheryl Tos found a school where "the teachers give special help that you could never find in a public high school. They are your friends, not only teachers. The kids here are special; they

Tracy Schmidt contributed many long hours as yearbook editor. She had previously had experience in yearbook work by being on the first yearbook staff the previous year

Equally interested in journalism was Dan Poehner, who often wrote stories to make his classes more interesting

Also in sports were seniors prominent. Playing both soccer and basketball was Derrick Vander Meulen. Ron Swasey enjoyed playing his favorite sport: baseball. For the girls' volleyball team, the following seniors filled starring roles: Jan Anderson, Jill Hagberg, Cheryl Tos, and Debbie Schmurr. Jill was joined by Rhonda Graham in girls' basketball

The mixture of seniors accounted for their different ambitions. Chris S. Master, who along with his cousin Chris E. had come as a senior from Costa Christian High School, had plans to attend the University of California at Berkeley and eventually become a building construction contractor. Jan Anderson and Jill Hagbery were hoping to attend Western Baptist College in Salem, Oregon, where Jan thought she might major in music. Nancy

Palmer was planning to go to St. Mary's College to major in occupational therapy. Cheryl Tos was planning to attend Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Michigan, to prepare to teach first or second graders

No matter what their ambitions were or where they went after graduation, they knew that they had become part of one another. Also they knew that they were the first graduates

As expressed by many seniors, the faculty was very friendly and concerned. They didn't confine their teaching to subject matter: they also sponsored many activities. They often gave students extra help—before school, at noon hour, even at the public library after supper if needed

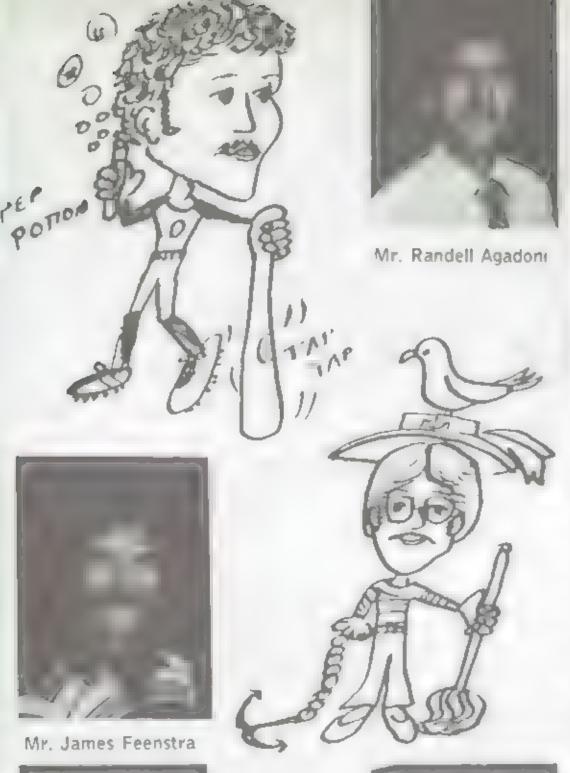

It took time. Dr. J. Barry Koops, principal, sighed, "I'm much busier than expected. I thought I could lean back in my chair and look philosophical. It hasn't worked out that way." Besides being principal, Dr. Koops coached the cross-country team and taught composition. Students sensed that he really cared about them; he listened to them

Mr. Harold Kemp kept a low profile behind the scenes. Besides being vice-principal, he taught geometry and algebra; he was guidance counselor; he arranged chapel and daily schedules; he advised Student Council; and.... When asked how he had time to do it all, Mr. Kemp answered, "I keep a lot of check lists. Every day I make out a list of daily priorities and budget my time accordingly."

Mrs. Glenda Culemann, secretary to Dr. Koops, did"absolutely everything." Having her own two kids, Kevin and Bonnie, among the students insured her personal interest. When asked about her job, she shared, "It's a difficult job, it's true but the Lord found a job for me to do. I know He wants me at CCCHS." Asked about her interruptions, she assured, "If the work doesn't get done one day, it will get done another day."

3 MR AGADONI shares his growth in Christ 4 MR GIZZI prepares the student body for the Joga-thon

The faculty was even busier than before. For example, Mr. Randell Agadoni was teaching a new course in oceanography. This study had been his specialty when he took graduate work in Hawaii, but adapting his knowledge to high-school level was a challenge, especially when he taught the first part of the course without a textbook. With Mrs. Agadoni he again coached the girls' volleyball team.

Mr. James Feenstra, the new science and math teacher, was a ski buff. He successfully started a ski club. For several weeks at night school he learned how to drive a bus to drive members to ski trips. Mr. Feenstra also intrigued his students in other ways. Among them was his novel home: a 17-foot boat docked at the Oakland marina. They could see him being gently rocked to sleep every night with a "Home. Sweet Home."

Mr. Paul Gizzi had spent most of his previous summer in Jordan and other foreign countries with the Biola College alumni soccer team. Mr. Gizzi continued to stress Christian witness in his P.E. classes and in team sports. He was doubly happy when the soccer team became Division III champs of the Bay Counties League in in their first year of CIF play. Finding gymnasiums and playing fields for practice and for games took up much of his time, since the school had no such facilities Parents were supportive, however, even though much transportation was involved

Miss Janine Crowe

... And They Demonstrated It

Very busy with class preparations, Miss Janine Crowe somehow found time to be the adviser for the Foreign Language Club. She taught six periods, but seven classes—Spanish IV and French II doubling up one period. Although she was always busy, Miss Crowe never missed the chance to help someone out.

Miss Lillian Eiten worked very hard as yearbook adviser. Going to workshops and meeting, she was a source of strength to the yearbook staff

For Mr. Kenneth Joling, it was a second year of teaching. He noted the difference between his first and second year: "This year there isn't as much last minute planning. My time and lectures are planned much better."

The antics of Mr. Kurt Schweickhardt amused everyone from the parents at the Talent Show to his students in The Gospels, Speech, and Drama. He especially had everyone laughing on Halloween, when he came dressed as a Chinese mandarin. It was hard for him to resist playing a role, especially one that lent itself so well to drama.

Mrs. Snapper was choir director, With spirit she led her groups in musicals and chapel. She taught instrumental ensemble for a first time. In March the choir and vocal ensemble took part in the Northern California Senior High Musicale in San Jose, Mrs. Snapper impressed students with her concern about uncovering their hidden musical talents

Many New Juniors Join Class

Seventeen new juniors took their places among the twenty old-timers, coming from various schools Acalanes, Berean, and Loma Vista. Jeff Brex even came from Arlington Baptist School in Maryland to join the group. A few of the new juniors were asked their opinion of the school. Celeste Nyland responded, "The teachers are more interested than in a larger public school" Judy Galindo had another thought: "The people here are really friendly, and because of the small size, it is easier to get involved. One disadvantage for me is that I live too far away (Pittsburg) to get involved in too many things." Judy found choir and ensemble activities ideal for her

The juniors were extremely active in school activities. All of the student body officers, for example, were juniors. Involved were Steve Nelson, Kris Finke, Sheri Dowling, Kim Behrns, and Brad Hute

Junior talents were many and widespread. They ranged from varsity cheerleaders, academic decathaion participants, soloists, to a full range of sports

A host of new experiences awaited the juniors They had the "wonderful" experiences of taking American history, American literature, taking the PSAT tests, and writing the dreaded term papers A few of the pleasanter experiences were becoming upper classmen, receiving class rings, and finally getting licenses to drive

Juniors Had Unity

As mentioned previously, the juniors realized they were upperclassmen from the types of courses they were taking. They had the freedom and responsibility of long-term assignments. Another privilege was being away on many field trips-with other groups, of course-but on many trips because of the courses they were taking. One of the class trips which was for juniors alone was the American literature field trip to the home of Jack London in Glen Ellen. Walking through his old homestead, seeing the burned-out remains of his new home, and going through the museum could be topped only by the visit to the "modern pigpen" which they trudged up hill and down dale to see

When asked about his future plans, Steve Nelson, president of the Student Council, replied, "I would like to attend college in Arizona. I would like to make a lot of money by being an architect." Hollie Nelson was making the following plans: "I want to take a year off and work on our ranch with our horses. I want to go to California Lutheran College in about a year after that"

Sophomores Settle In

In September of 1980, forty-three of last year's freshmen returned as sophomores. From their inexperience and knowledge that they were lowest on the totem pole, they could change their view they were on their lofty perches, feeling more sophisticated

CCCHS was no longer a new school. They had no apprehension about how great and how caring the principal, the faculty, and fellow students were. It was pleasant to renew their friendships of the past school year. The school "family" had greatly increased in size, especially because of a large freshman class. They were no longer the largest class in schoo

Added to the sophomore class were five new students. They had come from several different schools in the area: Tiffany Brandt from Clayton Valley; Mark Yaeger from Altasierra Ranch; Mary Colonna from Acalanes; Jodi Lapum from Northgate; and Tonya Hall from Miramonte. The new sophomores were accepted quickly as part of the new group. Everyone remembered that last year they had also gone through the same experience. As Regina Cronin shared, "At first, I felt lonely. A lot of the students came from the same school, and I was the only one who came from my school." When asked how she felt after a year, she said, "Now I know everybody. The whole student body are my friends." Jeff Cadle added, "We didn't have enough field trips, but we could get individual help from our teachers."

New student Tonya Hall had mixed feelings: rules were "quite tight" although the students were really nice. She liked the Christian atmosphere

Sophomores, both old and new, were involved in sports activities. Jodi Lapum, one of the new students, became a JV cheerleader, a new position in sports. Clint Smith, Jeff Cadle, and Dave Gutridge, with soccer experience last year, again excelled. Playing varsity basketball were Mark Randolph, Rod Tos, and Dave Fortuin. Not only were the sophomores looking back to the previous year; they were also looking ahead Already many were thinking of how the school could improve. Karen Colton offered, "I would like to see more school spirit. I wish that they could have more pep rallies and more signs at the games. I'll never forget when the whole school went to Crystal Springs for the division championship -and won! It was great!" Dave Fortuin suggested, "We should have a larger campus, better facilities, more teachers, more electives—like metal shop, periods where you can kick back, and an open campus."

So, the sophomores were settling in, not only looking back at their years as underclassmen but also settling back to think of their remaining two years as upperclassmen

Freshmen Faced Fears

A freshman year is usually a difficult year. Many freshmen find themselves in the situation of going to a school where they know absolutely no one After a while they are reassured when they realize no one else knew anyone else either. Also, the freshmen face the unpleasantness of being at "the bottom of the heap."

CCCHS tried to make some of the hardships of the freshman year easier, and evidently succeeded "When I came to this school, I thought that the upperclassmen would treat me like a child, but now I know that CCCHS isn't like that," stated Bernie Felipe, a well-adjusted and happy freshman

Along with the fun of being in high school comes responsibility: tests to prepare for, classes to get to on time... The differences between junior high and high school are enormous. For some of the freshmen it was difficult to get used to. "This year was hard to adjust to in the beginning, but now I know the advantages of going to a Christian school," said Lisa Stettler

The freshmen managed to overcome feelings of inferiority and began to fit in very well. Many found that the best way to fit in was to get involved. Three of the JV cheerleaders, for example, were freshmen. A large number went out for sports and others had solo spots in instrumental ensemble or speech. They found the school small enough to give them a chance to participate

Freshmen Share Feelings

Although many had had negative impressions of high school, they quickly changed their minds. 'I thought it was going to be like a prison. This school is different than I expected. The teachers aren't here just to get paid. They're nice, and most of all, they care," explained Jeanne Brey

Some of them were already looking to the future Elisabeth Johnson shared, "My main goal right now, next to showing how special Christ is to me, would be to play championship tennis at Wimbledon. I know that it would take sacrifice, but with the Lord's help and my dear family's constant support, I might reach that goal."

Cheerleaders Boost Cougar Spirit

Cheerleading is not all the glory some people seem to think. It's very time consuming. The girls usually practiced twice a week for an hour and a half. They were expected to be present at all games. Although cheerleading is fun, it can often be very frustrating. It isn't as easy as it seems to learn all the different chants and hand movements.

Both the varsity and JV squads were coached by Mrs. Bonni Agadoni. The varsity squad consisted of Head Cheerleader Heidi Monsma, Adele Monk Janice Morton, and Melissa Smith. As Adele Monk said, "The most fun is getting out there, doing the best you can, having your crowd support you When the teams do really well, everyone's really thrilled."

WHETHER THEY were posing for formal pictures—as Heidi Monsma. Adele Monk and Meissa Smith are doing—or eading cheers, as Janice Morton sidoing the cheerleaders were always full of spirit as they tried to involve the faculty and other students.

The JV squad consisted of Head Cheerleader Alyssa Mero, Darla Dade, Jodi Lapum, and Sue Sims. "It's a lot of hard work, but I really enjoy cheering the guys on," said Alyssa Mero. "I have a great time cheerleading." Both squads looked great and showed lots of spirit

Girls Volley Together for Successful Year

The volleyball team felt very successful. The girls received discipline and training. An important part of playing was daily practice. Bumping and setting drills were monotonous, but success in games made them worthwhile. Stretching and jumping exercises were preferable to the dreaded running up and down the school stairs ten times, the coaches' favorite

Because the coaches, Mr. and Mrs. Agadoni, had themselves frequently played on teams, they passed on their knowledge easily. Their good tips and active involvement helped the girls, encouraging and expecting the best, becoming not only the girls' coaches but also their friends. The girls developed a team spirit which—because they encouraged and cared for one another—was a very rewarding experience

Varsity Soccer Saw Successful Season

The varsity soccer team had a great season. They started off with three pre-season games: defeating Berean Christian, tying Ripon Christian, and losing to Monte Vista in Watsonville. After league games started, the team almost forgot what losing felt like. They had won every game and tied one until they met Costa Christian for the second time Costa was playing a very good game while the Cougars were not playing with their usual caliber That was the only league game loss. However, the next game, the Cougars came back to win, lifting their low spirits. From then on, they won all the games, taking Division III championship of the Bay Counties League

Monte Vista had previously won with a score of 1-0, but the Cougars did not want a repeat performance Scott Sims wouldn't let anything go past, and Clint Smith, after other tries by his teammates, put one in to give a Cougar win, 1-0

JV Basketball Ended on High Note

The JV basketball season was an overture to the varsity season. The melody began slowly with one win out of four games. A melancholy note struck the team when the opponents canceled the last three games. The tune sparkled when the gang won their final four games, including the victory over Costa Christian at their homecoming, when 9 out of 10 players scored! The games against the fathers added comic relief

Outstanding performances were conducted by Jeff Palmer, John Passur, and Craig Wierenga. All of the athletes orchestrated well during excellent passes, always looking for the open man. Coach Jim Feenstra was proud of the guys. Both gained experience and worked hard to end the season in style. The team then voted for the awards. Mr Feenstra put the ballots in his back pocket—and proceeded to launder his pants. The winners were all washed up'

Varsity Basketball Steady and Strong

The varsity basetball team was a young one with only 1 senior and 4 juniors among the majority of underclassmen. The team started off the season with 3 non-league games against teams that represented larger schools and older players. Even though the final scores showed that the opponents won, the team played well. During league games the team had 6 wins and 8 losses with 4 wins and 6 losses in the league. At the end of the season, Coach Gizzi remarked that next year should show a strong team since most of the players would be coming back.

Real Sports in Girls' Basketball

The girls' basketball team again proved that girls can do anything guys can do. Every class from freshman to senior was represented on the team Full effort from all members helped to achieve team goals

Perhaps the strongest quality of the team was their unwillingness to quit. This was confirmed in their game against College Prep. Down 28-15 in the third quarter, they were 34-17 with 4 minutes to go. A full-court press and hustling defense held College Prep scoreless as the girls scored 11 points to win the game, 38-34

The team often overcame great odds. The game against Head Royce showed their determination to win. Starter Kris Glieden was sick; Kris Finke and Carolyn Bradish were playing positions they had never played before; Mary Colonna fouled out; Kris Finke was injured—but the girls were determined towin, and they did: 45-38

Their most important win occurred in the game against Crystal Springs-Upland. It was a total team effort, but Tiffany Ohnstad's 21 points, Mary Colonna's offensive play, and Kelly Disselkoen's defensive play and rebounding were especially outstanding

Thanks to Mr. Joling's great coaching, the girls finished with a 14 to 5 overall record, with 7 wins in league play. They were co-champs with Crystal Springs-Upland in Division 3 Bay Area Conference Tiffany Ohnstad, Mary Colonna, and Kelly Disselkoen each made All-Conference All-Stars in the league

Baseball Team Met Tough Competition

The boys' baseball team, coached by Mr Randall Agadoni, successfully met very tough league competition, even though they were inexperienced. Nine members were sophomores

The team was solid with a lot of depth. Excellent pitching by Dave Mitchell, Scott Sims, and Rod Tos definitely boosted the team. Good attitude, determination, willingness to practice and give their all were pluses for the team. Being on the team was rewarding the players. All got closer as they learned more about each other as they played games scheduled against Bridgemont, Marin Academy, Woodside Priory and Pescadero

Softball Team Worked Hard

The girls' softball team was awesome. Coach Gizzi and Assistant Coach Tim LeFebre knew it was going to be a good season when 30 girls tried out for the team. The girls found that fast-pitch softball was a grueling, serious sport. Fifteen girls were chosen for the team after a rigorous few days of practice

Then the hard work began. The coaches, as well as the girls, donated many hours to perfect their skills to beat such schools as Campolindo, Redwood, Head Royce, Costa, Monte Vista and Fremont. Although CCCHS was not in a league, the time spent was not for nought. They grew in experience to prepare for the years ahead when they would be in a league

Hit-and-Run: Spring Sports

Cross Country

The first cross country team was established at CCCHS by Coach Barry Koops. The season started in late September and lasted until early November Coach Koops ran with the members every day after school. They traversed a total of 100 miles in workouts, trudging up and down hills around CCCHS. Team members took time off from their other athletic commitments to run every Wednesday after school at various meets all over the Bay Area. The girls ran a 2-mile race, and the guys ran a 25- to 3 mile race

The conditions went from one extreme to another. The courageous runners began their season at a meet in the dusty Oakland Hills in 98° weather. They ended their season running in a regional meet in pelting rain in the hills of Marin. Despite the negative factors, the team, although inexperienced, was successful. Both the girls and guys placed very highly in scheduled meets throughtout the season Intramural Ping-Pong

In this year' tournament, Brian O'Connor came back to defend his title as boys' champion for the second year. Kris Glieden joined him in the winner's circle Tennis

Tennis was again a sport that interested both guys and gals. Some members found it a welcome break from the indoor sports they had played during the winter months. Because the spring was an especially nice one, practices were enjoyable. As well as developing strength and skill, the team developed a sense of togetherness with Coach Joling's direction

Second Talent Night Reveals Additional Talent

In late September the school has its Second Annual Talent Night. This provided an opportunity for the students and teachers to show their varied talents. Eric Buhlis gave a convincing performance as Jonah just out of the whale's belly. Miss Crowe sang a delightful song in her native French. Heidi Monsma and Gary Casey captured the audience with their skit from THE GLASS MENAGERIE

The music department featured the boys' ensemble under Mrs. Snapper's direction. Other musical performances were vocal solos, duets, ensembles, and instrumental solos, duets, and ensembles

The night was successful, especially since parents and students became better acquainted

Music Department in Spirited Christmas Concert

For Christmas, the members of the choir, vocal ensemble, and instrumental ensemble put on an unusual program. Instead of the traditional Christmas carols the program was composed of several of Benjamin Britten's works, three solos from Handel's MESSIAH, and several instrumental pieces

The choir attempted very difficult music, achieving good results. Most choir members felt that the satisfaction of knowing they had done a difficult Job well was worth the hours spent. Tracy Schmidt commented,

It was hard work; we started right after Talent Night, but it really was fun!" Thanks to Ms. Snapper's hard work, the evening was very enjoyable, a good prelude to Christmas

First Drama Delights

As soon as the lights went out and the curtains opened for BAREFOOT IN THE PARK, the audience forgot that on stage were Mark Randolph, Della Franks, Jana Brehm, and John Hozack They became Paul and Corie Bratter, Mrs Banks, and Victor Velasco. Although the cast was nervous, the nervousness did not show. Their success can be credited to Director Kurt Schweickhardt's patience and willingness. The professional atmosphere of the actors and actresses pleased everyone. He had organized the cast and crew exceedingly well. It was the first school play—what a first to follow.

Student Council Leads

The Student Council has the main responsibility of serving the students. As Sheri Dowling said, "We are supposed to meet as many of their wishes as we can because we represent them

The officers of the council for 1980-81 were Steve Nelson, president; Brad Huie, vice-president; Kris Finke secretary; Sheri Dowling, treasurer; and Kim Behrns social chairman. Mr. Kemp was faculty adviser. As well as carrying out the office to which each person was elected, he had additional duties to carry out. For example, Brad Huie was in charge of fund raising, and Sheri Dowling had the responsibility of running the snack bar

The officers of the council met once each week to plan and discuss future events. On alternate weeks the whole council met. Because the classes at school were not divided into years of graduation, each homeroom elected two representatives. These two members shared with the homeroom the news notes that Kris Finke distributed to them

The vending machine and concessions at evening sports activities were both Student Council fund-raisers. Other activities they sponsored were a rollerskating party on January 22, just after finals for first semester had ended, and Grub Night, which was held on February 13

Asked how he viewed the year, President Steve Nelson responded: "I had a good long list of the goals I had set for the year. Now, looking back at what we've done, I quess we could have done much more, but, at the same time, I guess we've done okay

Music Really Scores

Each group in the music department—Concert Choir. Girls' Ensemble, and Instrumental Ensemble—worked hard and diligently under Ms. Snapper's direction. On their busy schedule were an instrumental festival; the choir singing at Walnut Creek Presbyterian Church for a ladies' luncheon, a solo and ensemble musicale for Concert Choir and Girls' Ensemble in March; a spring concert; an all-school fine arts festival; and performances at chapels and at various schools and churches throughout the year

GIRLS' ENSEMBLE FORMED TO FIT NEED

The Girls' Ensemble was formed to meet special needs to include all the girls who wanted to sing. Because of the large number of girls, Ms. Snapper enjoyed having the girls practice and perform rather difficult music for three-part treble choir

CONCERT CHOIR COUGAR CHORALE

For the first time the members of the Concert Choir were chosen through audition. The group was limited in number so that the voice ranges would blend and be in proper balance

TEN TAPPERS AND TOOTERS

Thanks to the hard work of Ms. Snapper, the Instrumental Ensemble was a very active group. They performed in chapel, accompanied the choir, performed in the Christmas concert, and also entertained a group of senior citizens at Montego Heights Lodge

FOREIGN LANGUAGE CLUB COOKS

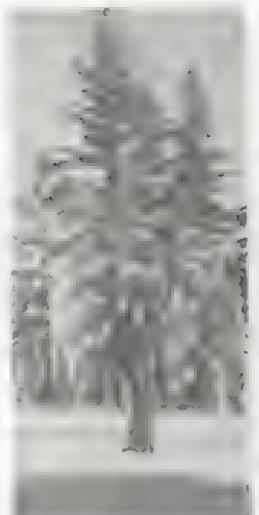

Although the Foreign Language Club was small, it included all 3 languages taught: French, Spanish, and German. Having elected no president, all members contributed to the group, with Miss Janine Crowe as adviser. They sponsored bake sales to raise money for field trips and went to Brussels, a French restaurant in Lafayette. The club consisted of Sarah Balducci, Carolyn Bradish, Karen Colton, Regina Cronin, Kris Glieden, Samantha Maracle, Heidi Monsma, Lyneil Stuart, Wende Vought, and Dan Wolfe

STUDENTS IN STITCHES

The Needlework Club began at the end of the first semester. This small group of girls, along with their advisers, Miss Brown and Mirs. Culemann, enjoyed many forms of needlework. They started out by knitting and crocheting, and later went on to needlepoint and embroidery, making some wonderful things: from knitted slippers to needlepoint pictures. Because the club was so small, they enjoyed a special kind of fellowship. Members were Michelle Baden, Beth Johnson, Nancy Palmer, Tracy Schmidt, and Laurie White

DIGGING INTO THE WORD

Student Council felt that a lunch-time Bible Study group was necessary. After talking about it for a while, Kevin Culemann, a junior, volunteered to lead. The first Bible Study began near Thanksgiving. Meetings began with prayer and reading of Bible verses relating to the upcoming lesson. Many people liked the study because it dealt with today's teenage problems. Kevin said, "It's a good group. I felt good about it. We teach each other; we're all in it together."

DARING TO DRAMATIZE

The Drama class gave lively performances of scenes from plays in front of the class. Rebekah Eller said, "It's pretty much fun. It takes a lot of time and preparation for a play." Mary Colonna added, "Mr. Schweickhardt is a really good teacher; it's not boring. We do different things every day." Drama class offered excellent preparation for Sam Boone, Della Franks, and Mark Randolph, for they all had leads in the school play, "Barefoot in the Park," which was given on March 6 and 7 at Del Valle

PEPPING UP THROUGH PAW POWER

The first pep club in the history of the school was a voluntary student organization which tried to create fun and effective ways of promoting school spirit. The officers and members for the first time named the club "Paw Power." The officers were

Yearbookability

At the age of 1 year, 1 month, the yearbook finally received a name. It became ECHOES. The second production of the yearbook staff was somewhat easier than the first because of "hands on" experience. Also helpful were workshops the adviser and the editors attended during the summer and early fall.

The production of a yearbook takes time, trust patience, and cooperation. Although each position on the staff demands certain qualities, all positions demand communication and teamwork

The editor, Tracy Schmidt, and the editors of copy and layout, Sarah Balducci and Wende Vought, met with the adviser, Miss Eiten, every Tuesday after school, often until 7 P M. The other members, along with the general editors, met every Wednesday noon for planning meetings and often on Saturdays

Especially exciting during the year was planning for the first darkroom. Money earned through a sale of cheese and sausage and additional money given by the Boosters' Club went to purchase darkroom supplies and equipment. With the hard work of Brad Hule and the expert help of Tim Le Febre, the first putures were printed in the darkroom on Saturday February 7. The staff chaiked off dead ines. November 11. December 22. February 23, and March 16. Everyone was waiting to see the finished product at the end of May.

Not Church But Chapel

Chapels were an integral part of the school week. A Student Chapel Committee, under the direction of Mr Kemp and Dr. Koops, tried to keep chapels vital and alive During the first week of February, Spiritual Emphasis Week with Mark Vermaire as speaker for three days was a special emphasis

Derrick Vander Meulen, senior, reflected on what chapel was like: "Approximately once a week, after second period, the whole student body and teachers start walking down the hill. Our destination: Calvary Baptist Church. This is where our weekly chapels are held

'Chapel usually begins with a few songs, directed by Mr. Kemp and accompanied by Kim Behrns. Then, when the singing is finished, the speaker comes up. Our chapel speakers are not only ministers and youth pastors, although some have been. We've also had athletic coaches, businessmen, our teachers, Dr. Koops, and sometimes we even have one or two of our students speak. At other times there is no speaker at all. This is when the choir puts on a presentation, or the instrumental ensemble plays for us, or when we are privileged to have singers or instrumentalists from another school or college come with their presentations.

'When the speaker is finished and we've closed in prayer, we all start the climb back up to school

"So, if you happen to be driving on Stanley Blvd. and you see 154 kids walking down the street, don't worry. It's not a revolution—it's chapel time!"

New Additions to School Family

During the semester break, six new students joined the student body—3 freshmen: Kim Feistel, Betsy Milnes, and Pete Sturdevant; 2 sophomores: Scott Berg and Blaine Jacobs; and 1 junior: Karla Batche der Ali of the new students feit good about CCCHS Kim Feistel commented, "I like it here. The kids are much friendlier, open and more easy going than the school I was at. I like the teachers; they're really helpful."

An addition to the faculty at the semester break was Mrs. Tricia Grame. She generously gave of her time to come in mid-afternoon to teach I period of art. She was replacing Mrs. Agadoni who was at home caring for Ryan.

For such a small school, CCCHS certainly excelled in academics. For the first time, it sent six students—Ken Kiraly, David Mitchell, Anne Nawata, Tiffany Ohnstad, Nancy Palmer, and Derrick Vander Meulen—to the Academic Decathion at Miramonte High School. They as a team came in fourth, which was fantastic considering the tough competition they faced

Another first was the participation of freshman David Robison, junior Tiffany Ohnstad, and senior Nancy Palmer in the Contra Costa County Spelling Bee held at California High School in San Ramon In our schoolwide contest, held to find our winners, all of our students were given a 50-word spelling test. Miss Eiten, after correcting the tests, said, "Some of the spelling were interesting, but unfortunately have not yet entered our language."

Not only students but also teacher excelled in various skills. CCCHS was proud to announce that they had a "Schoolmaster of the Year" winner at their own school—Miss Lillian Eiten. No one was as surprised as Miss Eiten to learn the news

The school board supported all the various activities of the school. They were interested not only in academics but also showed tremendous interest and support in the library and its facilities, the Boosters Club, athletics, and lent an attentive ear to all school affairs
